MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

The attention of correspondents is respectfully drawn to the fact that the notices of church musical services, choir work, and musical performances given in connection with church work should be embodied in the church and religious notices. These matters do not come within the purview of the musical critic.

Nordica Banjo Club.

The Nordica Banjo Club, Mr. Walter T. Holt, director, was entertained last Wednesday evening by Miss Berta Lee. A musical program was rendered including numbers by the Banjo Club and a mandolin and guitar trio composed of Miss A. E. Hill, Mr. W. T. Holt, and Mr. B. W. De Loos, piano solos by Miss Nellie Sande and Miss Lewis, banjo solos by Mr. A. D. Bailey and a mandolin solo by Miss Lovett Healy. This was the first meeting of the Banjo Club this season which promises to be a busy one for them. Those present were: Miss A. D. Bailey, Miss S. F. Harvey, Miss A. E. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stutsman, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. De Loos, Mr. George C. Furber, Miss Merta Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Holt, Mrs. Ada C. Piper, Miss French Piper, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Lewis and Miss Lewis, Misses Helen and Loretta Healy, Miss Nellie Sande, and Mrs. A. R. Rowe.

Rebber Orchestra.

Under the direction of H. W. Weber, the Rebber Orchestra gave a concert Friday night in the lecture room of Keller Memorial Church for the benefit of the building fund for the new lecture hall. A very large audience greeted the orchestra, and a neat sum was realized by the building committee. A pleasing program had been arranged and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The soloists all did exceptionally well, each being compelled to respond to encore. Miss Emma Cohen, soprano, sang "You Alone," "Madam Butterfly," and "Come, It Is June." Mr. Charles N. Black, basso, sang "Bedouin Love Song," and "Endearing Young Charms." Miss Alice N. Stone, contralto, included among her numbers "Perfect Day," "A Dream," and "Good Bye." Mr. Frank Goebel, tenor, gave "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," "You Alone," and "Where My Caravan Rested." The readings of Miss Mary A. Newcomb were a pleasing feature of the program. The orchestra numbers were a march, "Panama Exposition" (Pierpont); "Hungarian Lustspiel" overture (Keler Bela); selections from "Lilac Domino" (Cavillier); "In Balm of Night" (Ziehe); "Intermezzo" (Wedding of the Rose) (Jesell); "Idyllic Moments" (Ehrlich), and the "American Patrol" (Henscham). Mrs. F. G. Klein and Miss Bessie Humphreys acted as accompanists.

Will Give "Messiah."

It is announced by Mr. Sydney Lloyd Wright that the Evening Choir of the Church of the Covenant will give during the Christmas season at one of the Sunday evening services, Handel's "The Messiah," and that it will be his endeavor each year to give a rendition of this, the most popular of all the oratorios with the Evening Choir. As is the custom in England, it will be given on some Sunday within twenty-five days of Christmas Day. Mr. Wright has not yet decided the exact date, but with the consent of Dr. Wood, the pastor of the church, it will be given on a Sunday evening between December 25 and January 19, 1916. An England in the home of oratorio, the tradition will be observed by giving the work as a Sunday evening service with a short address by the pastor. It will be repeated for a second time on the Monday evening following. The solo parts will be sung by the regular members of the double quartet of the Evening Choir with the assistance of Mr. E. F. Backing, tenor, who is a member of the double quartet of the Afternoon Choir. Mr. Wright has always stood for the advancement of home talent and at the time that the Washington Oratorio Society gave the same work last year, Mr. Robert Maltland, who was engaged as the only visiting artist from New York, remarked after the performance that the three home soloists, Mrs. Gawler, Miss Harper and Mr. Backing, sang their parts with a great deal more artistic taste, finish and interpretation than many of the foreign and New York artists that he had sung with. It is extremely fitting that a work of this character should be given in the form of a Sunday evening service as oratorio is a musical work upon a Biblical subject containing an implied action or story. Oratorio is part of the great "little representative" music and the ideal has been sought regardless of lesser considerations here the world is blessed with such works as those of Handel, Haydn, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Bach and others. From now on it can be assured that two of the most beautiful and popular church works will be given annually by the Evening Choir, viz: "The Messiah" and "The Crucifixion."

The rehearsals for "The Messiah" will begin at the regular rehearsal of the Evening Choir next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the chapel of the Church of the Covenant, entrance on Eighteenth street. Application for admission to this organization must be made at one of the rehearsals before November 1.

WAR PLANE CARRIES ELEVEN. American Tells of Great Fighting Airship of French.

New York, Oct. 23.—England's aerial squadron has failed in its attacks on German fortifications and supply bases because of the effectiveness of German anti-aircraft guns, which can shoot accurately to an altitude of more than 10,000 feet, said Paul Arbon, an aviator, who arrived today on the Baltic, of the White Star Line.

F. S. Chanonhouse, of Hyde Park, Mass., returned from France, where he closed a large contract for American aeroplanes. He said he had been shown the French triplane, which has a seating capacity for eleven persons and is equipped with four 20-horsepower motors.

Bulgar Victory Denied. London, Oct. 23.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens this afternoon denies the claim of the Bulgarians that they have occupied the town of Komano, adding that the Bulgarians were repulsed between Ergipanska and Strain and also in the vicinity of Vales.

SERB STRATEGY

Unbeaten Serb Army on the Austro-German Flank Fatal, Says Critic.

NISH WILL BE VACATED

Mitrovitz Strategic Point of Serb Defense, While Allies Strike at Sofia or Constantinople.

By CYRIL H. BRETHERTON.

The lesson of military history that success in warfare results from the destruction of the enemy's armies and not from the occupation of his territories, applies to the fighting in the Balkans not less than elsewhere. The central empires must do more than "hack their way through" to Constantinople. To arrive there and then have the road behind them blocked would be a catastrophe.

It is therefore necessary that they not only carve their way through but that they be prepared to hold the Morava Valley open behind them. For it is only along this valley, that is to say along the Belgrade-Nish-Sofia railway, that they can receive reinforcements and supplies. To do this they must either destroy the Serbian army, in which case they can guard the railway line with a comparatively small force, or they must hold between Belgrade and Sofia a force strong enough to repel the attacks of the Serbian army, made with intent to cut the lines of communication.

Huge Force Necessary.

The latter alternative means that a huge force of men must be employed and it is scarcely possible that Germany and Austria, even with the assistance of Bulgaria, can find such a force. To destroy the Serbian and Montenegrin armies, on the other hand, may prove an impossible task. The Salonika-Nish railway runs close to the Bulgarian border at Vranja. It is at this point that the Bulgarian army are at present reported to have cut the line. Probably they will succeed in cutting it permanently. But if they do it still will be quite easy for the allies to send reinforcements over the branch line from Uskub to Mitrovitz. The line between Mitrovitz and Uskub and Salonika does not run within about fifty miles of the Bulgarian border and it will be very difficult for the Bulgarians to cut it. The Bulgarian strategists clearly recognize this fact and are striking at the railroad between Uskub and the Greek border. It is reasonably certain that even if they should reach the line between these points the allies will drive them from it almost immediately.

If the Serbians retire south and west from Nish to Mitrovitz or even farther south to Uskub, where they can receive supplies and reinforcements from the allies, it means that the German lines of communication are continually threatened on their right flank by an organized army that may attack them at any moment and, if successful, would cut them off from Austria and Germany completely.

Between Mitrovitz and Nish runs a range of mountains which offers admirable positions in case the German and Bulgarian armies should attempt to capture Mitrovitz. In addition, there is a small but efficient Montenegrin army also occupying a position on the flank of the Austro-German lines of communication. This army could be used by forces of the allies landed at Avlona and passing overland by road, and such forces could also reach Mitrovitz in case the Salonika route should be interfered with. It is unfortunate that the allies do not avail themselves of the past months' work in building a railroad direct from Antivari to Nish.

Sofia Vulnerable Point.

It is quite unlikely that the allies will send more than one or two hundred thousand men against the Serbians. If they can concentrate more than that at Salonika they will use the road to strike directly at Sofia along the Uskub-Kotendil-Sofia railway or at Constantinople via Thrace. The capture of Sofia would not be of any great strategic importance but it would have a considerable moral effect upon a nation that has suddenly found itself dragged into a war with its hereditary friend and protector—Russia.

Whether the Russians are in a position to land any troops on the Bulgarian coast is doubtful; they do so, however, the moral effect would be great. At least a considerable section of the Bulgarian people would receive the Russians as their friends. Turkey is supposed to be in the moral effect to be great. At least a considerable section of the Bulgarian people would receive the Russians as their friends. Turkey is supposed to be in the moral effect to be great. At least a considerable section of the Bulgarian people would receive the Russians as their friends.

Serbs Outnumbered.

It is not probable that the allies can force more than 10,000 men into Serbia in time to participate in the defense of Nish, if it is decided to defend that city. The Serbians are being attacked on two fronts by forces totalling about 300,000 men. They are probably number 200,000 and they are inferior in artillery to their adversaries.
